

Based on what you've learned from the past two weeks, answer the questions below:

1. What course material or writing theories/concepts/skills/strategies did you find useful/effective? Why?

I found journal 11 critical analysis of Airbnb to be the most useful of concepts learned; for, critical analysis is not only limited to academic and literature materials. To be critical, removed from cynicism, elevates one to common trappings of advertisements where each listing is trying to grab your attention only showing the positives and potential promises.

2. What did you find confusing/difficult? Why?

I found taking both a programming and writing intensive course simultaneously to be most difficult; for, both courses take a lot of time and mental bandwidth...

3. Any questions or suggestions?
